STORIES OF OUR STREETS

THE ENCHANTED MITCHAM SUMMER FAIR

One summer morning, 12-year-old Jonathan and two friends Jake, Hannah and his lovely mum went to the Mitcham Fair Green summer fair to have some fun and fresh air. Jonathan and his friends went on 2 awesome fantastic rides, where they all got really dizzy. But something caught their attention in the corner. It was a restricted zone, and no one could enter without permission.

Soon, Jonathan's mum went to pick up him and his friends who were still in awe of the most peculiar gigantic slide, knowing they all had to come back to this slide as quick as possible. After that, he contacted his friends with his brand, new I Phone to meet up at the summer fair entrance at 9:25 pm to try out the old, slide covered up with grass.

As soon as it hit 9:24 pm, everyone was there ready to use the slide without parental consent. This was dangerous!

Firstly, they all had to climb over the 6.8ft tall iron cross-hatching fence. Secondly, they had to remove the grass covering the opening of the wide mouth of the slide.

THE ENCHANTED MITCHAM SUMMER FAIR

When they went down the slide they didn't appear at the bottom. Instead they all vanished to another world, where mythical creatures lived and thrived.

In horror all three of them screamed in genuine fright looking at centaurs, werewolves, sphinxes, merpeople and three phoenixes zooming through the air with great speed!

The three friends ran to hide but it was too late. The creatures had noticed a centaur running at them to find out what just happened.

As quick as a flash, a centaur came running up to them saying, "What are you doing here, you can't be here, it's too dangerous." Cautiously, the centaur helped the trio to find a place to hide. Silently, the centaur said, "You need to get powers to even rival a mere elf in this world and my name is Tristan."

Firstly, Hannah had to go through a portal to get the power which was to control the weather to her will. Excitedly, she started a thunderstorm then quickly changed it to a sunny sky, making the creatures wonder.

THE ENCHANTED MITCHAM SUMMER FAIR

The beastly, blustering black bastilles lived in the old wells, the chimeric, celestial, cunning centaurs lived in the rugged mountain. The troublesome, treacherous, tricky troll in the rocky cavern. The plumage – perfect, perpetual, passionate phoenixes in the palm grove. The cave – dwelling, colossal, circle-eyed Cyclops in Mount Eve, the guarding, glaring, grey gargoyles perched in the castle, the hideous, hazardous, hungry hydra in the swampy castle and finally ghastly ghoulish, grisly gorgon in the west, near ocean all bewildered with fear at the sudden weather.

Emotionally, Tristan said the gargoyles, hydra and gorgons have always had all the power and resources since they were the most powerful, they were blocking the path to the portal to send them back home. Unexpectedly, a troll came walking down to them, but they quickly realised and ducked down slightly escaping. They have to move now and hopefully find two more portals from Jake and Jonathan.

Jake excitedly jumped into the portal to get the power which was to wish for anything he wanted to. Immediately, he wished for a chocolate chip with cream, and it appeared, proving his powers worked.

Next up was the nervous Jonathan, who was about to enter the portal when Jake and Hannah playfully pushed him in.

Surprisingly, Jonathan started manipulating fire out of his bare hands uncontrollably, he needed some time to master this dangerous fire. It took him a few weeks to master the very difficult power of fire with lots of practice but eventually he controlled it with pure ease, which was exceptional.

After a while, Tristan the centaur had spread the word of what him and the trio were going to do in the world to restore true peace. With everyone knowing a group of brave powerful centaur, about 40 of them with Tristan leading them went out to the basilisk for partnership with them taking all the roosters as far away from the old wells as possible because the crowing of a rooster instantly killed a basilisk.

With the help of the centaurs and the basilisk, all the creatures knew and were gearing up for battle because they were tired of them getting the leftovers and being the slaves of the gorgons, gargoyles and the hydra.

THE ENCHANTED MITCHAM SUMMER FAIR

Now that the basilisk, centaurs, trolls, goblins, phoenixes and cyclops were all ready there was one thing left to do. Fight to the end!

In the early morning, the trio practiced really hard to fully be one with their powers to even have a chance to win against the beasts. Finally, it was time to face the enemies head-to-head with all the allies helping charge in west, near an ocean where the gorgons lived.

Seeing the creatures running at them the Gorgons quickly gazed at them with their fearsome eyes, but nobody changed into stone because Jake had given every creature an invisibility cloak to hide themselves and had created an illusion to fool the gorgon. As soon as the gorgons realised, Jake had already wished for a sickle to eliminate the head and a kibisis to place it. As quick as a flash, all the gorgons were gone.

Perched in the swampy castle were the grey gargoyles ready to begin battle. Courageously, Hannah used her power of commanding the weather to instantly make it sunny, which immediately turned the gargoyles in silent, still stones for eternity. Inside was the hungry multiheaded hydra with a powerful aura that shook the atmosphere.

THE ENCHANTED SUMMER FAIR

Without waiting, the hydra started breathing out a beam of fire destroying anything in its path because Jonathan could do the same with fire and there was a raw 1 vs 1 between the hydra and Jonathan.

With this distraction Jake wished for two great big swords and passed one to Hannah to start removing one head, but the heads kept multiplying so they both stopped. They had to come up with a plan to win this. Suddenly, Jonathan grabbed one of the swords and removed the heads but this time he is cauterizing it so it can't regenerate more heads.

After 4 brief cuts, the immortal (golden) head was removed and buried under a heavy rock by the trolls and goblins to pin it down. They were victorious! And the worlds were equal with no one high or low class. Sadly, the trio had to enter the portal back home. As they were leaving, they hugged Tristan and by now Tristan was a known, powerful figure in his world. Back in the trio's world, it was morning time and they acted like nothing had just happened in another world!
